As the economy diversifies and market globalisation continues to change how people do business, the demand for business professionals will continue to expand. According to recent employment data, business and financial occupations are projected to grow faster than the average occupation between 2019-2029.

The Business sector is split into several sub sectors that provide the backbone to every single business that exists. Each organisation albeit small or multinational/international will need to employ staff in Administration, Finance, Human Resources Marketing, IT Services and in many cases Sales as well. There are also specific Business sectors for Asset Management, Banking, Consulting, Investments, Public Relations and of course all these need to be managed by different levels of Management too!
